PUFFS

OR

Seven Increasingly Eventful Years
at a Certain School of Magic and Magic

By Matt Cox

Originally Produced Off Broadway by Tilted Windmills Theatricals
(John Arthur Pinckard/David Carpenter)

PUFFS was Developed in Part During a Residency with the University of Florida School of Theatre + Dance, Jerry Dickey, School Director

Originally Produced Off-Off Broadway
by Stephen Stout and Colin Waitt

Assistant Director's Note:

When I took a certain "official sorting quiz" in middle school and was sorted as a "Puff", I was admittedly a little disappointed. I mean, the only notable Puff is introduced and then killed off in the same book! Nothing ever seems to be going right for the Puffs. Boy, can I relate to that.

As a freshman, my first day of high school was spent behind a computer screen. But somehow, I still was able to perform in two shows my freshman year (despite the masks, social distance, and all the chaos of virtual theatre). Three years later, I am now a Senior and fulfilling my dream of assistant directing a show. One that hits me right in the chest every time. A show about the Puffs. The house that's always overlooked, ignored, and underestimated. The Puffs have never gotten to be the heroes... until now.

The show you are about to see was not an easy one to put on. I could type out all the challenges I've faced as Assistant Director, but your program would be twice the size. So instead, let me just say how much love I have for every single person involved in this production. And how incredibly impressed I am by this cast. I am an actor at heart, but I am not at all envious of the insane number of lines, blocking, choreo, costumes, and props that the cast somehow navigates flawlessly. And to work so closely with Mrs. Gore is a gift I am eternally grateful for.

And thank you for making sure I had a cameo in the show too! (iykyk)

I hope all the hard work you see tonight resonates with you in some way. This show is wacky and heart wrenching and goofy and glorious. And whether you are a major Potterhead or a muggle, we hope you laugh and cry at the humanity of these students who just so happen to attend a certain magic school.

From all of us Puffs to you: Hiiiiiiiiiiii!

-Liberty Pankhurst

Director's Note:

When my sons were Cub Scouts, we were with our Pack on a family camping trip to Cunningham Falls. The day before, the last Harry Potter book had been released, and more than a few of us— both adults and kids—carried our new book with us. We'd squirreled our treasure away in our tents, and I remember when I stole away from the campfire, I saw glowing flashlights in assorted tents doing the same thing I intended, because we were all dying to start Deadly Hollows—and we couldn't wait one ghost story longer.

For me, that's the real magic of Harry Potter. These books are portkeys.

I don't have words to express the excitement our cast and crew is feeling about Puffs. We've been inside the world of Harry Potter these past two and a half months, except we're telling a new story, a story about Wayne Hopkins. Wayne is a normal kid from a small town in the U.S. who, against all J.K Rowling odds, is a wizard, and... a Puff. Wayne isn't extraordinary...or is he?

We hope you'll laugh a lot tonight, and that your eyes well up with unexpected tears—because this story is a lot of things but mostly, it's beautiful, and it's true.

There's a lot to learn in this life, but nothing matters more than learning how to love. I'm super thankful I took this train to Hogwarts with this collection of teenagers. Regardless of which house they think is theirs, they all have a wisp of Puff, and that's the best compliment I could give.

-Roberta Gore
